

the Preventing Possession Initiative

committed to shared learning

Housing Rights Service Blog Commenting Policy

This blog has been established to disseminate lessons learned as a result of the work of the Preventing Possession Initiative and to promote discussion on financial inclusion and issues surrounding mortgage and rent arrears.

- We encourage readers to comment on posts, but ask that comments are on-topic, polite and respectful.
- All comments will be moderated. We aim to publish all comments within 2 working days of their submission.
- Comments are the opinion of the individual leaving them. Comments do not necessarily reflect the views of Housing Rights Service or the Preventing Possession Initiative.
- Nothing on this blog should be constituted as legal advice. Housing Rights Service cannot be held responsible for the inaccuracy of any comment.
- Comments may contain links that are relevant to the discussion. However, any content deemed as advertising will be deleted.
- Comments may be edited for spelling, grammar or length. If substantial revisions are necessary, the moderator will contact the author of the comment.
- By submitting a comment, you agree to allow Housing Rights Service to use this comment in its publications.
- Submitting a comment confirms your acceptance of this policy.